

Wedding Reception Floor Plans

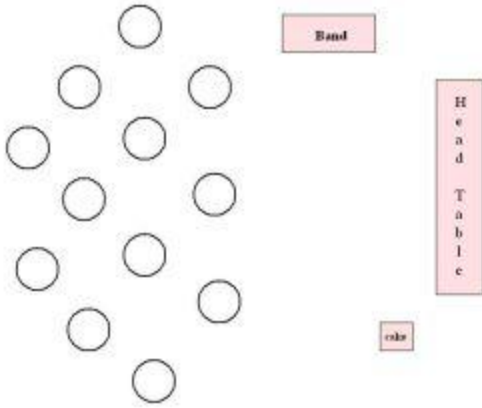

Here are a couple of different floor plans to consider for the layout of your wedding reception.

You can have the head table, DJ, and your cake all in front of the room with your guests seated behind a space designated for the dance floor.

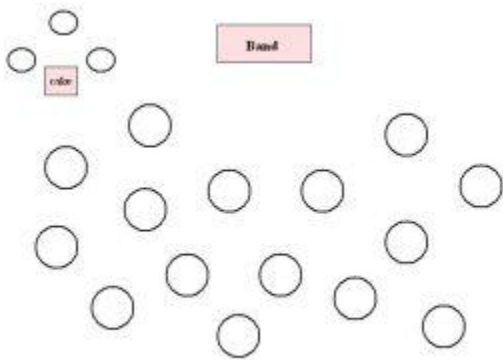

The head and cake tables are on one side of the room opposite the band and entertainment with the dance floor in the middle of the room.

Here you have the head and cake tables on one side of the room with the band at an adjoining side.

This arrangement has all of the guests as well as the family and bridal party sitting at long tables. Example of having long tables instead of round banquet tables.

Here is an example of having the bridal party at a cluster of small tables instead of one long head table.
